I need a great home!

Jasmine is an amazing 8 lb. miniature poodle who somehow survived an unbelievable ordeal after being abandoned. She was so traumatized, even after she was rescued, nobody could get near her for several weeks. But little by little, she started to trust. Today, she is very loving and surprisingly affectionate, and she runs and plays with the other dogs like she was still a puppy. But Jasmine still has a way to go before she is emotionally whole. She needs her own home with someone who is very patient and can give her the attention and nurturing required for her continued healing. It's difficult to tell her age because of all she's been through, but we estimate she was born around 6/1/05. Jasmine is not on any medication, only a holistic supplement, but she still has an occasional mild seizure, and one eye has a trauma-induced cataract. Neither of these conditions dampen her spirit. She is truly an inspiration, and you will see amazing results from the love you give her. Please open your heart and home to this beautiful little girl!
